

Douglas Bader Officiating Scholarship

What is it?

In memory of former FIBA official and basketball personality, Douglas Bader, basketballscotland have established a scholarship programme aimed at providing financial support to assist referee in their personal development.

There will be a small amount of money available each year which will be distributed on an application basis.

Who can apply?

Any official registered with basketballscotland can apply for support. Applications will be prioritised based on the following criteria:

Ideally, the official should:

- Be actively officiating in Scottish basketball
- Have demonstrated a commitment to officiating within Scottish basketball
- Have demonstrated a commitment to their personal development
- Be targeting an appropriate development opportunity
- Be a progression towards a long-term goal in officiating

What is available?

- A grant of up to £200 towards a development opportunity

What else do I need to know?

basketballscotland will require individuals who receive grants to:

- Complete a written report on the opportunity and what they gained from it
- Commit to a return of service for the support provided (this may be to officiate games, discuss the experience with other officials or present at a clinic. We won't ask you to do anything you are not comfortable doing)
- Provide receipts, proof that the fund was spent on as outlined in the application form

How do I apply?

- Consider a development opportunity which is appropriate for your current standard of officiating
- Discuss the option with a member of the officials commission, if appropriate
- Contact the Officials Administrator for an application form or download from the website
- Send it to Officials Administrator by 01/03/2013

What happens then?

- The application will be considered by a panel of experienced officials
- Grant offers will be made to the successful individuals

Are there any restrictions?

- We won't fund attendance at basketballscotland courses or clinics
- We will fund up a maximum of £200 – if the cost is above this, then you should seek additional funding or be prepared to contribute yourself
- We expect to get a number of applications and unfortunately, will not be able to fund them all – even if they are high quality.
